Meeting or event – August 19, 2026

Tell people the answer first

IF THEY REMEMBER ONE THING

Make it one clear sentence.

Say what changed and why it matters. Everything else earns its place by helping people understand or act.

01 What happened?

Use a plain verb: changed, passed, failed, or needs a decision.

02 Why should we care?

Give only the context people need to understand the consequence.

03 What do you need?

Name who acts and what done looks like.

MAKE IT EASY TO FOLLOW

Give the story a rhythm

Move between a clear claim, the evidence, a useful picture, and the decision.

Give the strongest evidence the most space

THE THING THAT CONVINCED YOU

Show the clearest proof

Use one measured result, comparison, or observed behavior.

Make it large enough to read from the back, then say what it changes.

ENOUGH CONTEXT

What am I looking at?

Show the one dependency or limit people need to read the result correctly.

WHAT WE DO NOT KNOW YET

Be honest about the gap

Say what will answer the question and who will do that work.

Use a diagram when it makes the story simpler

Diagram. The audience should see the relationship first; the caption tells them why it matters.

Put the choice—and the line between choices—on screen

WHAT THE EVIDENCE SUPPORTS

Here is what we know

Show the evidence and say where the conclusion still holds.

WHAT COULD CHANGE OUR MINDS

Here is what remains open

Name the failure, trigger, or new evidence that would change the recommendation.

CLOSE THE GAP

Say who goes next

Name the person who will answer the open question and what answer will be enough.

Give the story a beginning, a middle, and an end

01

The point

Say the conclusion before the supporting detail.

02

What supports it

Show the measurement, system, or source that convinced you.

03

Where it stops

Be clear about the uncertainty, risk, or responsibility line.

04

What happens next

End with a person, an action, and what done looks like.

End by asking for one thing

MAKE IT EASY TO REPEAT

Ask for one concrete action

Choose, review, fund, schedule, or test the specific thing on screen.

WHO GOES NEXT?

Name the person and what done looks like.

A date helps. A result everyone can recognize is even better.

THE LAST WORD

Leave the room with the decision

Move implementation detail to backup slides or a companion document.
